

19th International Symposium on Plant Lipids

Bringing together the world's leading plant lipid scientists for a one-of-a-kind program that will set the stage for innovations within the plant-oil-based industries.

19th International Symposium on Plant Lipids

www.ispl2010.org

The Australasian Section of AOCS (American Oil Chemists' Society) is pleased to host the 19th International Symposium on Plant Lipids. Convened every two years, the ISPL is well-established as the premier international scientific gathering in the field of plant lipid sciences. We anticipate nearly 300 scientists will attend this important Symposium.

The world is entering an era of increasing need to raise plant oil production to meet expanding demands for food, feed, fuel, and industrial materials. To meet these evolving market expectations, we must focus on increasing oil yields and tailoring plant oil composition to more closely match human nutritional requirements and industrial material specifications.

Our ability to create the oil products of the future will be founded on increased basic scientific understanding of how plants synthesize and accumulate their lipids and storage oils. ISPL has a proven record of gathering the world's leading experts to share information and exchange ideas in this exciting field.

An impressive schedule of technical programming is being planned, ranging from understanding the biosynthesis and role of various plant lipid components to development of new oil compositions and exploring the feasibility of future lipid-based biomaterials.

Organizing Committee

- Allan Green (Chair), CSIRO Plant Industry, Australia
- Lucky Inturrisi, Cargill, Australia
- Qing Liu, CSIRO Plant Industry, Australia
- Jeffrey Newman, AOCS, USA
- Peter Nichols, CSIRO Marine and Atmospheric Research, Australia
- Surinder Singh, CSIRO Plant Industry, Australia
- Xue-Rong Zhou, CSIRO Plant Industry Australia

Scientific Program Committee

- Surinder Singh (Chair), CSIRO Plant Industry, Australia
- Sue Blackburn, CSIRO Marine and Atmospheric Research, Australia
- Kent Chapman, Center for Plant Lipid Research, University of North Texas, USA
- John Dyer, Arid-Land Agricultural Research Center, USA
- Ljerka Kunst, Department of Botany, University of British Columbia, Canada
- Johnathan Napier, Rothamsted Research, United Kingdom
- Sten Stymne, Department of Plant Breeding and Biotechnology, Swedish University of Agricultural Sciences, Sweden
- Teun Munnik, Department of Plant Physiology, Swammerdam Institute for Life Sciences, The Netherlands
- Hiroyuki Ohta, Center for Biological Resources and Informatics, Tokyo Institute of Technology, Japan

The Importance of Sponsorship

Organizing a global symposium of this magnitude requires considerable funds. Without financial support from the industry, this symposium would not be possible. To ensure this program offers the latest information and insights from the world's leading experts, it is vital to maintain an affordable registration level for all participants. In addition, our symposium budget includes a substantial amount of travel subsidies to provide for student participation, which is an investment in our future.

ISPL-2010 Sponsors will:

- Be associated with a world-class event
- Reach new international community and professional contacts
- Support future research and scientific collaboration
- Encourage student participation
